KimmelThe Witch Face : Mexican Tale. Kimmel, Eric A. - Holiday Home, New York: 1993. There is an old tale that claims that at midnight, on Christmas Eve, cattle will kneel in the barn and talk to each other. One day an old resident of Maryland decided to check the fairy tale, hiding in a shed at midnight to listen. And he climbed a rope to the window in the hayfield. He lay down on rough gray boards, covered himself with hay and waited... After getting the lay ground, so to speak, Border Man Bigfoot Wallace moved from Austin to San Antonio, which was considered the far edge of the border, to register as a Texas Ranger under Jack Hayes. In their day, Texas was as wild as the west could get. There was danger from the south of the Mexicans, the danger to wet and north of the wild border filled with Indians and desperados, and the east settlements still had problems with the Cherokee nation ... He sulked a little, standing on the side of the road while all the other men danced with their pretty His girlfriend didn't come to the dance that night. Her mother was ill, so his little girl stayed by her side. A beautiful pious act, he thought sourly, but he left it at free ends. Joaquin Murieta and wife Rosita lived with their older brother Carlos in California. Three Mexican immigrants lived on a small, successful farm, and the men also worked the claim near Hangtown. However, other miners living nearby tried to run them, telling them that it was illegal for Mexicans to pan for gold or hold a claim. Murieta's brother ignored their threats and continued to live peacefully on his farm and work in the gold fields. It is said that Llorona was once a poor young girl who loved a wealthy nobleman, and together they had three children. The girl wanted to marry a nobleman, but he refused her. He told her that he could have married her if she had not been born with three out-of-wedlock children, which he considered a disgrace... From the Prince Bear. Once upon a time there was a very poor lumberjack who had three beautiful daughters. Of the three girls, the most beautiful was the most beautiful. One day a lumberjack went into the woods and cut down an oak tree when a very large and terrible bear snatched an axe from his hands... From Poinsetta: Pepita, a poor Mexican girl who had no gift to introduce a child of Christ on Christmas Eve. When Pepita walked slowly to the chapel with her cousin Pedro, her heart was filled with sadness, not joy... Once upon a time there was an evil priest who was not afraid of God or man. His duties for the church included counting offerings and ringing bells to encourage people to mass. But his heart was filled with greed, and he began to use the good people of his parish to his advantage. The priest stole money from offerings to save for himself, and when he filled a chest full of gold, he killed the man and buried him with his chest so that the ghost of the murdered guarded him. Anyone who has tried to dig up the treasure will be eaten by the skeleton of the murdered man. He did not expect to meet the woman of his dreams, but there she walked in the moonlight next to the cemetery. Carlos accelerated his pace until he was level with her, hoping for a glimpse of her face under her veil. Once a Spanish soldier married a beautiful native woman, and they had two children, whom the soldier loved very much. However, the soldier was from a wealthy family. His parents and relationships disapproved of his wife and threatened to disown him if he did not marry a Spanish woman... This combination of cultures leads to the creation of traditional fairy tales and narratives, better known as myths and legends. Myths Myths of storytelling that tell us about the origin of the gods, about the creation of our world and space. The importance of both types of fairy tales is that they are created in the context of a group, and as a result they can be used to see the different characteristics of the group's culture. They usually show us religion, beliefs, or try to explain natural phenomena. Legends of Legends of History, created by anonymous authors with some basis in history, but with many decorations. They talk about the facts that happened in the near past and what characters may or may not be people. Legends show us a vision of the world and life that people had with, historical, political, philosophical and cultural values. Colonial Mexico Tales During the Colonial Era in Mexico, new narratives began to emerge. Many of them, created on the basis of a combination of religion and past beliefs, tried to mix indigenous and Christian-Catholic beliefs. Pregnant woman and eclipse in Mexico it is believed that the impact of a pregnant woman on the eclipse will cause her baby to cleft the lip or palate. Faith originated in the Aztecs who thought the eclipse occurred because of a bite had been taken out of the moon. If a pregnant woman had watched the eclipse, her baby would have bitten him from the mouth. An obsidian knife was placed on the woman's stomach before going out at night to protect her. This belief remains unchanged hundreds of years later, with the only difference being that today a metal key or safety pin is used for protection.
